

Designed & Constructed by Ryskul Aidana

THE DESIRE FOR LIFE

Concept

The Desire for Life

The concept of "a striving for life" implies growth despite obstacles. To demonstrate this, the garment utilizes gray, rigid textures and sharp, distinct shapes representing rocks and harsh mountain surfaces.

Yet, between the crevices—despite the cold and inhospitable surroundings—moss begins to sprout.

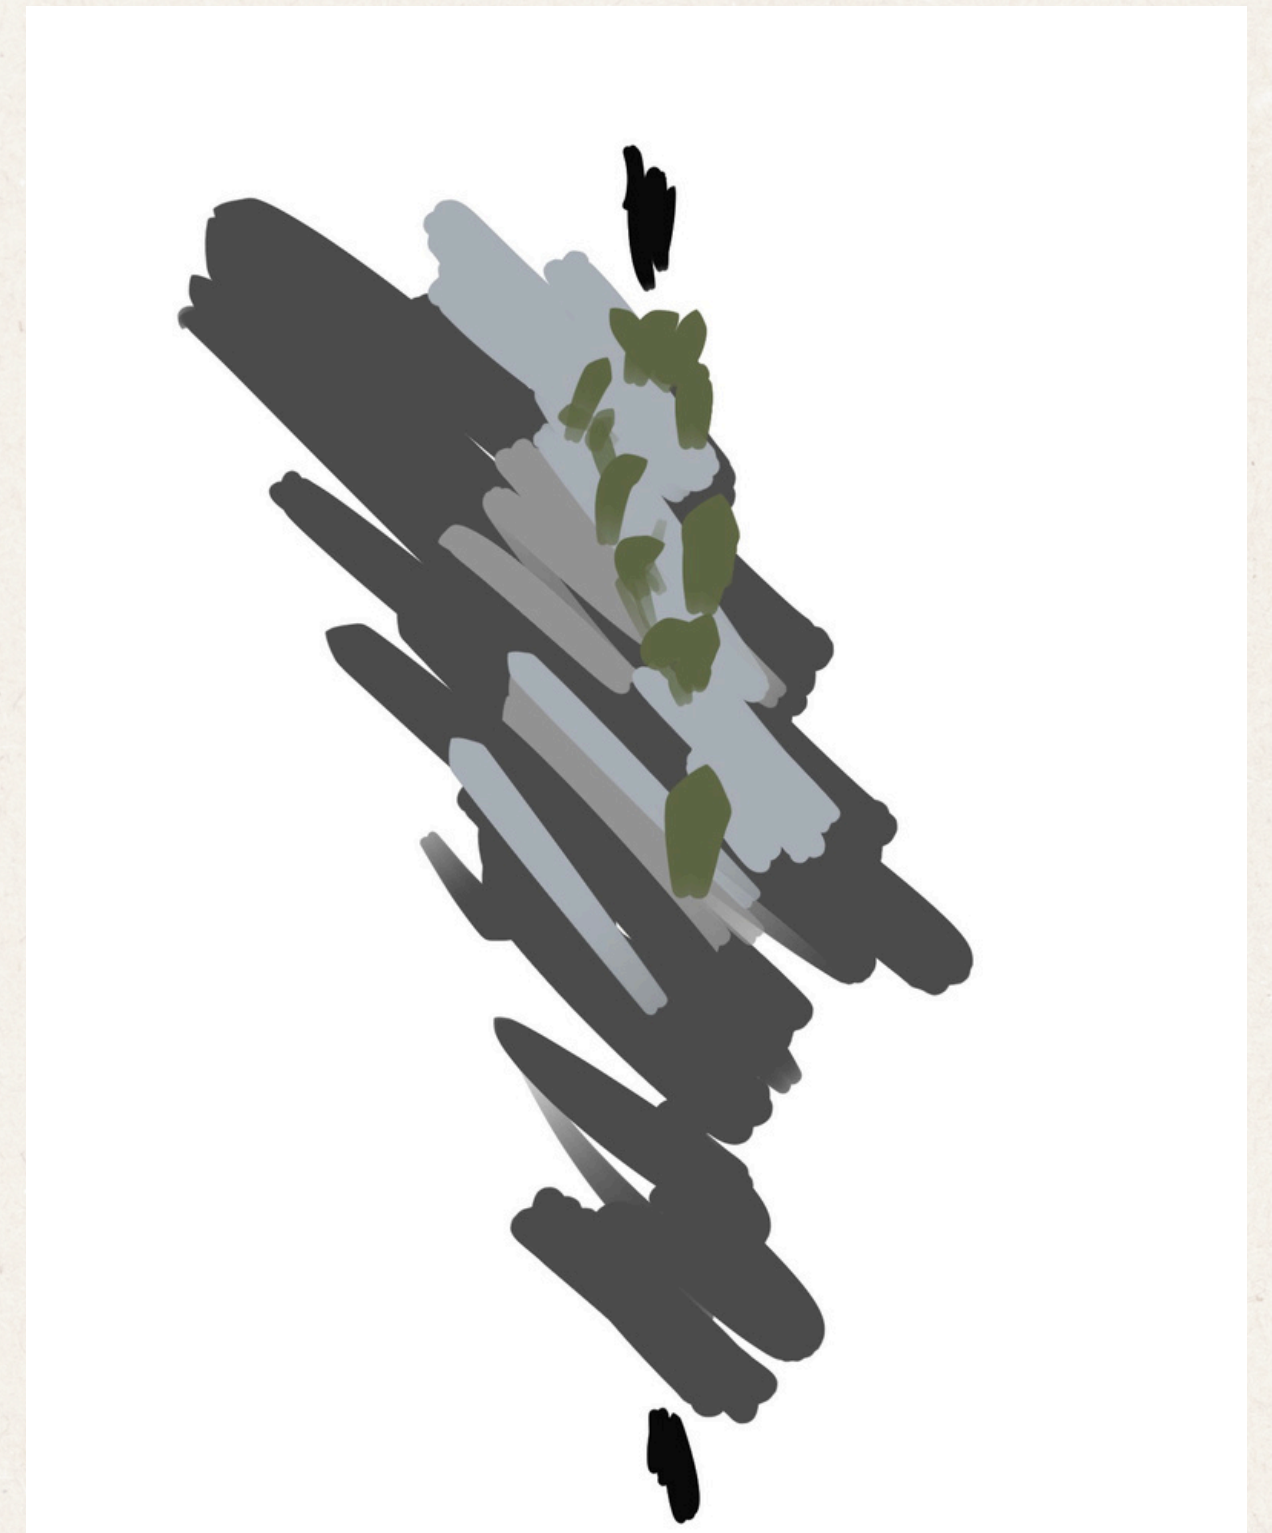

Research

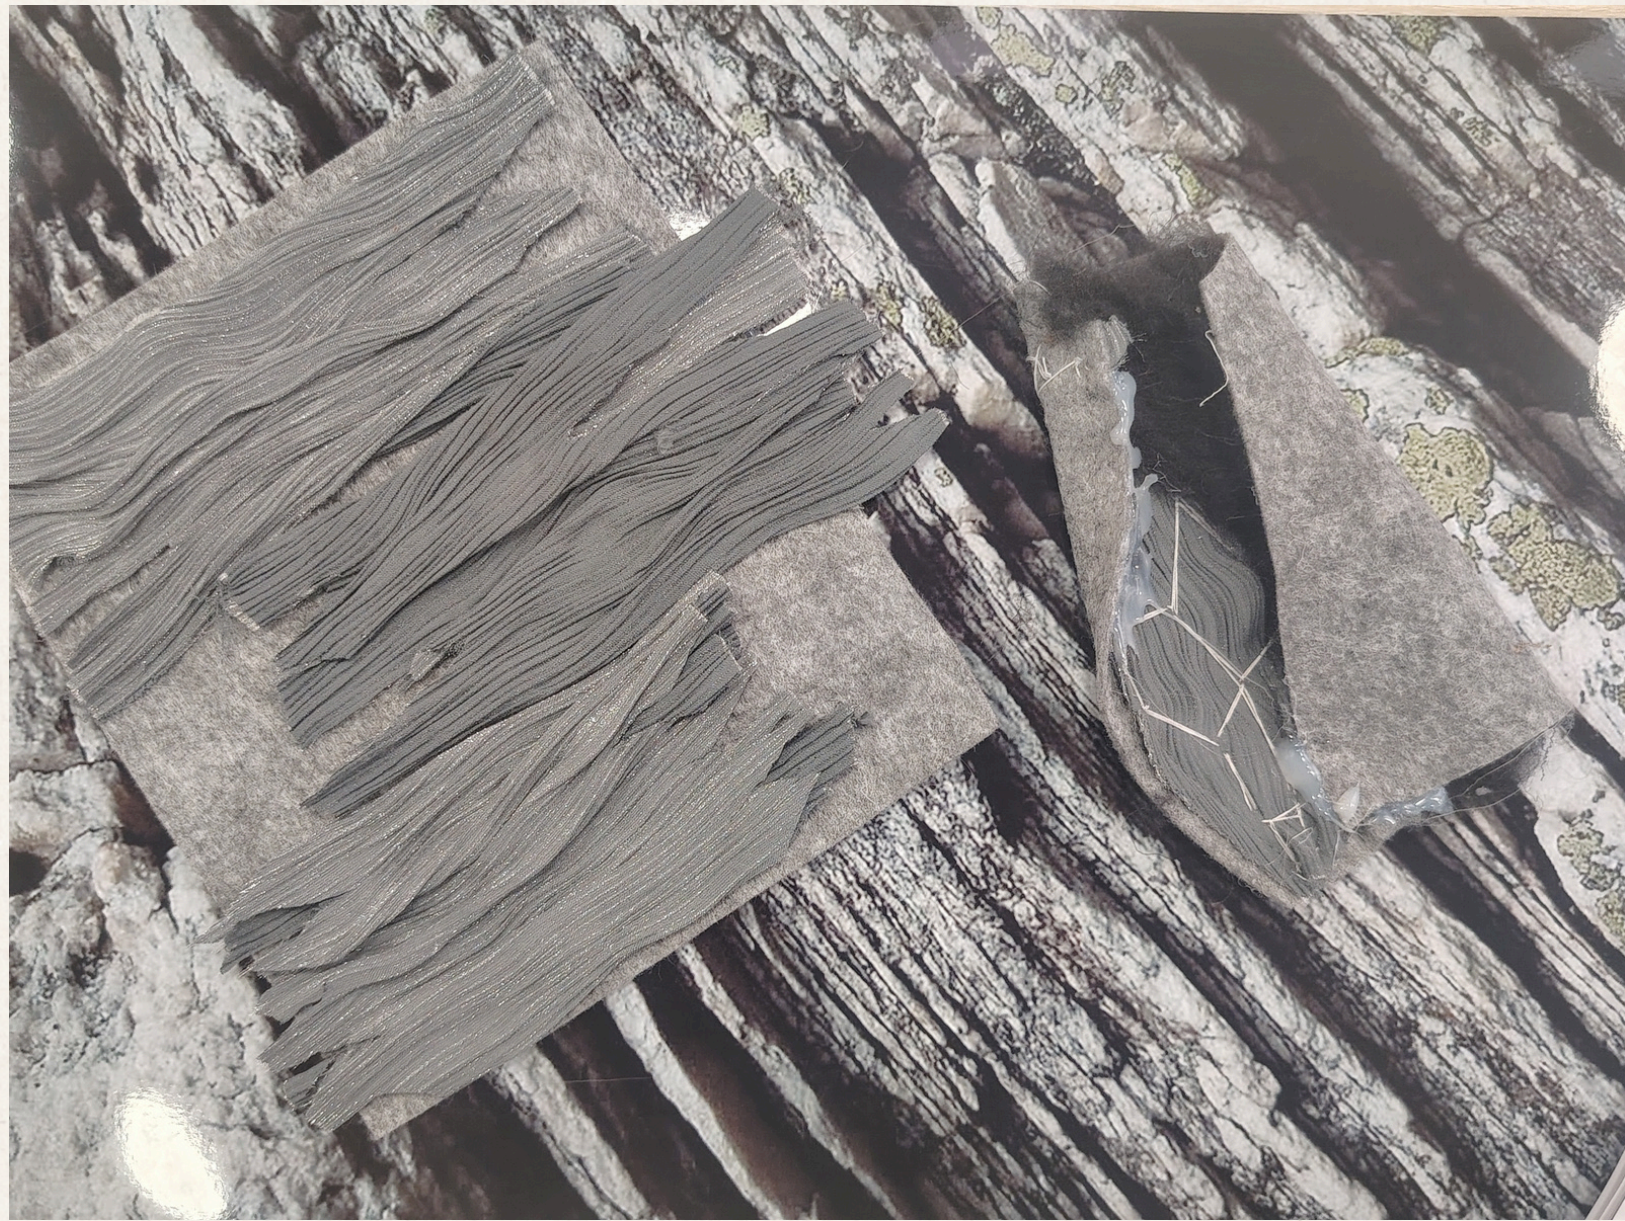

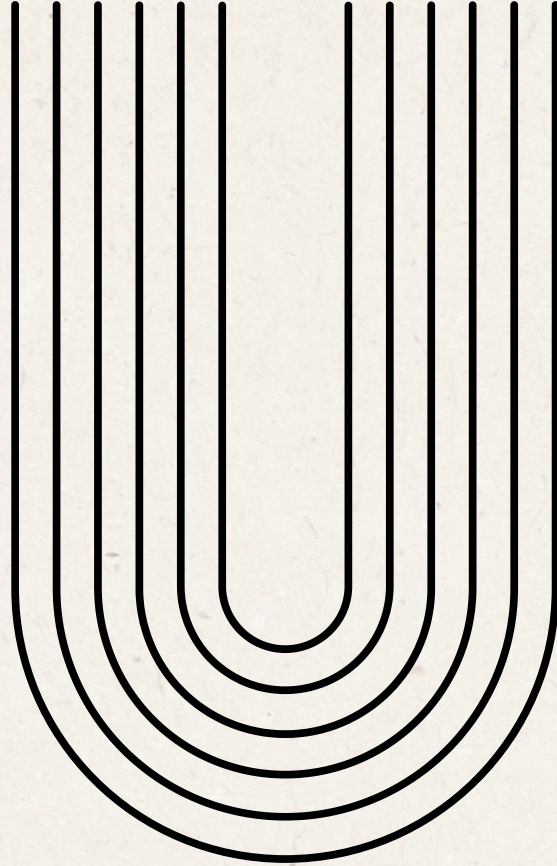

To evoke the mountain surface, I used rough felt in two tones of grey. The layers echo the rhythm of nature - reminiscent, yet never a direct copy. Fragments of grey organza introduce a subtle diversity of texture.

The moss is rendered in a restrained, quiet green wool. It emerges through the crevices between the hard grey edges, embodying the impulse toward growth and life.

Moodboard and sketch

Mini 1:2 and textures:

Photoshoot

Photoshoot

